A MESSAGE FROM THE DISTRICT ADMINISTRATOR

Written by: Michele Butler

Winter Is Upon Us!

Now that we have the option of virtual learning, one might expect that there will no longer be “snow days.” That an unexpected day for students to sleep a little later and spend the greater part of the day making forts, angels, or snowmen is just a thing of the past.

We can and probably will have virtual learning days before the winter is over; however, the first day in which a cancellation is required, will be a no-school day or “snow day”. Either the evening prior or most likely, the morning that inclement weather arrives, a message will be sent on our emergency messaging system, informing parents and students that school will be cancelled.

After the first cancellation, we will follow the same procedures as we did last year:

If it appears that weather conditions for the following school day may result in a cancellation, staff will be instructed to notify students to take home iPads and to stay posted for further instructions. Later that day or early the next morning, the emergency messaging system will be used to inform parents and students if there will be a virtual school day due to inclement weather. Other media outlets will also be contacted to post the announcement.

If inclement weather arrives without time to prepare, the emergency messaging system will be used to inform parents and students that there will be a virtual school day due to inclement weather for HS & MS students and a cancellation for elementary students. Other media outlets will also post this announcement.

We hope that by providing virtual learning opportunities on most days that would otherwise be cancelled, our students will have the benefit of learning continuity, and the end date of the school year is more likely to be sustained. So, this year our students may experience the best of the past and the present. They can hope for a snow day and also know that June 5th will be the first day of summer vacation!

G-E-T Curriculum Corner

During the months of September and October all G-E-T staff worked collaboratively in their Professional Learning Communities to improve curriculum and assessment. This work is ongoing as we are committed to providing ALL students a guaranteed and viable curriculum. We know that through assessment of learning and analysis of assessment results, we improve our instructional practices. We are grateful for the time we Wednesdays to collaborate with colleagues.

Professional development days September and November focused on Universal Design for Learning and Being Culturally Responsive. A focus for all professional development days this year is improving our assessments and assessment practices.

We continue to employ the expertise of our staff during professional development days to improve and grow in professional knowledge and practices. Without a doubt, the G-E-T staff has so much to offer.

As always, your feedback is welcomed.

Thank you G-E-T Stakeholders for your continued support of all things curriculum, instruction, and assessment.
